

TIPS FOR HAPPIER CATS

Many indoor cats are starving for stimulation. Here are some tips for taking a cat's world from good enough to great!

SENSORY STIMULATION.

Engage a sense each day with something new to smell, interesting to look at, novel texture to touch, exciting to taste, interesting to sniff, or soothing to listen to. Bring in a leaf from outside, try a new toy, plug in a heated cat bed, put on kitty tunes, etc.

THE BOX

Big enough to easily turn around without hitting a side, low enough to easily step into (no jumping or climbing please), easily accessible, at least one box per home level, plus scent-free, small particle litter that's scooped at least daily,

MENTAL OUTLETS

Activities that challenge the brain, such as www.catfoodpuzzles.com, training sessions like www.catschool.co, problem-solving opportunities, and new experiences.

PHYSICAL EXERCISE

Opportunity for and encouragement of natural movements, such as chasing, running, stalking, climbing, etc.. Plenty of solo play opportunities as well as interactive play with humans

ENVIRONMENTAL ENRICHMENT

A well-rounded environment that not only allows but facilitates all the things cats need and love to do! Google "cat enrichment" for ideas!
